PSC Provides Earth Day Lesson Plans for Teachers

The Public Service Commission of West Virginia is encouraging teachers across the State to use the opportunity of Earth Day on April 22, to talk to students about the importance of taking care of the earth by conserving energy, water and the other natural resources we depend on in our daily lives. To start the discussion, we have developed and collected lesson plans that are appropriate for use with students in kindergarten through high school. Those plans can be found on the Public Service Commission's website:

<http://www.psc.state.wv.us/KidCorner/EarthDayLessonPlansGradesK-12.pdf>

The lesson plans include conservation tips, science experiments, art projects, group activities, discussion topics and many other useful tools for teachers. Although they were created for Earth Day, these lesson plans can be used throughout the year and will remain available on the "Kid's Corner" page of Commission Website.

For more information access the Commission's website at:
